

Information for students at Studium due to the situation of Covid-19

To reduce the risk of contamination in connection with the education at school, Studium has taken many different preventive measures.

Teaching will take place both online and at the school. You will have a combination of school-based and remote education. You will be given information about when and if you should be at school by your teacher.

In order to prevent gatherings of people in the school building, we have looked at when different student groups start and end their lessons. We also avoid long breaks during the lessons, that are in the school, and instead only have short breaks in the classroom.

When you are in school, it is your own responsibility to keep distance from other students and staff and follow the advice of the Public Health Agency to prevent the spread of infection. You should follow good hygiene practices, like washing your hands with soap and water when you come to school or using antibacterial hand gel.

We open our classrooms well in advance before lessons begin and we have arranged the furniture so that every other place is empty. You can only take the appointed seats (no flexible seating allowed). When you come to school, you should go straight to your classroom and take your place at an available seat. In each classroom there is access to antibacterial hand gel.

It is not allowed to sit and study before or after a lesson while you are at school, when the lesson is over you must leave the school building.

The school has expanded its cleaning routines so that door handles, stairs, benches and bathrooms are cleaned more often than usual.

Our student café is closed, and we do not offer the opportunity to heat and eat food at school, in order to reduce the risk of infection.

If you need support with, for example, logging in to the learning platform, you can contact our digital IT support (losen.hjt.styrman@educ.goteborg.se) or book an appointment with them at school. You can book our student counsellors, special needs teachers and study and career counselors by phone as well as digitally or on site. You will find their contact details on our website studiumgbg.se

Only healthy students and staff are welcome to the school. Even if you are just a little unwell, you stay home and follow the education via the learning platform. Notify your teacher if you cannot attend a lesson.

You can find more information about what rules apply in the school on our learning platform or on Facebook.
